Variety in subject, tone, and approach defines Katharyn Howd Machan's selected poems, a choice representation of more than four decades of her poetry. Tracing the literary journey of a woman who has been following the writing path since age 15, Machan's many volumes include poems about raccoons, the female shapeshifter Fox, feminist takes on fairy tales and classical mythology, the personal mythology of her family, her daughter's heroin addiction, her travels to France and Greece, her loves and lovers, her devotion to dance, her appreciation of food. Monologues from her 1888 fictional town of Redwing reveal stories the residents dare not speak aloud. Sonnets chronicle the life of the Professor, a male academic poet, while other poems honor the Wise Woman, the Crone, the Goddess. With the fractured fairy tale, "Hazel Tells LaVerne," Machan's most widely reprinted poem, she gives us a reworking of the princess and the frog tale. 100 Greatest Mandalas Compilation: Enjoy Hours of Meditative Relaxation by Bringing to Life the Best Collection of Mandalas This compilation is composed of the following books: Mandala Coloring Book Floral Mandala Coloring Book Flower Mandalas And Much More! Palm Line's heartfelt poems speak to a transformative journey "to rediscover love as both a question and an answer." Seeking hope, honoring family, finding love, accepting time's passage, and understanding gratitude are all major themes explored in this dreamlike collection. This Little Puffin Swimming Middle River Twenty-five Great Essays Epic Turtle Tales (Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles) America Abroad Reflections on Life with My Master In the story of Mary and Martha, Jesus praises Mary for sitting at His feet and listening to Him. The takeaway isn't to not serve others. Rather, it is to not let the worries of this world steal our joy. Children will be encouraged to spend time with Jesus every day! In What the Gratitude List Said to the Bucket List, Heffernan pays homage to the loved ones who have shaped her world view, and the poets who have inspired her. An adherent to Jack Gilbert's declaration that we must "risk joy," Heffernan invites readers to do exactly that— even while recognizing grief that often goes hand-in-hand with gratitude.

"Secret Music: Voices from Redwing, 1888 is a contemporary poet's take on small town life in the late 19th century, a new Spoon River Anthology. Machan has her myriad characters speak truths they dare not share aloud. A fascinating take on the time and a place." -Marge Piercy, author of Made in Detroit and 18 other collections "I've admired the Redwing monologues for many years and even have several memorized. My students bond with them intensely, drawn into the lives of these characters. Having directed two adaptations, I know that they are effective on the private page and the public stage." -John S. Gentile, Ph.D., Professor of Performance Studies, Kennesaw State University "Unlike the ghosts of Edgar Lee Masters' Spoon River or the shadows of Edward Arlington Robinson's Tilbury Town, the hot-blooded folk of Redwing smolder with sexual desire, religious ardor, and utopian zeal. Their secret music will sear your ears." -Anthony Di Renzo, author of TrinAcria: A Tale of Bourbon Sicily "At the core of the Redwing poems is love, and all the complications that result. Light and dark, entangled as they often are, move in balance in this superb collection." -George Drew, author of Pastoral Habits and Down & Dirty Katharyn Howd Machan, author of 35 previous collections of poetry, has lived in Ithaca, New York, since 1975 and, now as a full professor, has taught Writing at Ithaca College since 1977. After many years of coordinating the Ithaca Community Poets and directing the Feminist Women's Writing Workshops, Inc., she was selected to be Tompkins County's first poet laureate. Her poems (many of which have been awarded prizes) have appeared in numerous magazines, anthologies, and textbooks, and she has edited three thematic anthologies. Developers who write programs for GNOME use the GNOME API. Working with the GNOME API is preferable because the program will conform to the standard GNOME program look and feel. It also allows the developer to use the GNOME specific libraries in the program, greatly simplifying the development process. The Official GNOME 2 Developer's Guide is the official GNOME Foundation guide to programming GUIs and applications using the GTK+ and GNOME API. Developed in partnership with the GNOME Foundation, this book is for programmers working with the GNOME 2 desktop environment. Each section begins with an example program that serves as a tutorial, then develops into a reference on the topic. Includes abundant, well-annotated examples. Knowledge of the C programming language is required, but no GUI programming experience is necessary.

Guy Bourdin, who died in 1991, was a legend in the world of fashion photography. He was the most radical and audacious photographer of his generation but his reputation has been surrounded in secrecy - he rarely allowed his photographs to appear outside the pages of French Vogue. No book of his work has previously been published. His estate was frozen by the courts until 1997, after which his son, Samuel, gained control of his work as a result of which this long-awaited book can be published. Bourdin was originally a painter and a friend of Man Ray. His fashion photographs began to incorporate his surrealist influences. Fashion photography became an arena for his personal obsessions. The results are as shocking and astonishing as any commercial photograph ever published. They were executed meticulously. Despite his intense eroticism, subversion and, as Cecil Beaton described, 'his grotesque little gamines', Beaton referred to him in 1975 as 'unquestionably the most interesting fashion photographer in Paris today'. His work was said to have represented 'the look of an era -glamorous, hard-edged, cleverly spiced with vulgarity... rich with implied narratives and strong erotic undercurrents'

The National Book Award – winning author compiles a “ thought-provoking volume ” of essays by Joyce Carol Oates, Oliver Sacks, Jaquira Diaz and others (Publishers Weekly). As Jonathan Franzen writes in his introduction, his main criterion for selecting The Best American Essays 2016 “ was whether an author had taken a risk. ” The resulting volume showcases authorial risk in a variety of forms, from championing an unpopular opinion to the possibility of ruining a professional career, or irrevocably alienating one ’ s family. What ’ s gained are essential insights into aspects of the human condition that would otherwise remain concealed—from questions of queer identity, to the experience of a sibling ’ s autism and relationships between students and college professors. The Best American Essays 2016 includes entries by Alexander Chee, Paul Crenshaw, Jaquira Diaz, Laura Kipnis, Amitava Kumar, Sebastian Junger, Joyce Carol Oates, Oliver Sacks, George Steiner, Thomas Chatterton Williams, and others. An expert communicator, Jack McAfghan writes the memoirs of his four-legged life as a mixed-breed Afghan Hound. From obedience and agility training to hospice work, Jack and his master learn their lessons side by side, inevitably applying what they have learned as their own lives unfold. It is a love story that can be used as an informal study guide for those who are in the process of training a dog, learning to love, or grieving over the loss of a friend. Jack presents with a wise, open and informed mind. He speaks firsthand about the psychological aspects of canine behavior as he opens the reader's mind to the possibilities that exist in life and after death. He reminds us that the way we think can change the course of our lives. This story will touch everyone who has ever loved. It matters not if they have four legs or two. Jack leads us to a higher love as he expands our tolerance and compassion for all of humanity. He extends himself to every creature of the earth, every human on the planet, every spirit in the universe and most of all, to the bona fide Master over all. 'I hear the voices of America, ' writes Radavich, and through them America Bound renders a cultural landscape altered in the wake of the Twentieth Century. By 'listening to the voices of those who lived simply for themselves and others in the heartland of their history, ' voices aching to be heard, we sense how their stories are also ours, and their questions - 'Where do we all go from here?' - the ones we must live by. Christian Knoeller, poet, author of Completing the Circle American Bound rests firmly in a tradition of dramatic lives rendered everywhere with poems achievement of Dave Smith has a poet captured the Chesapeake Bay culture with the power and authority of Ann Howells. Larry D. Thomas, Member, Texas Institute of Letters, 2008 Texas Poet Laureate Dallas poet and editor Ann Howells left rural Maryland's shore long ago, but that region of mists and dangerous work on the water never left her. In So Long As We Speak Their Names, she beautifully, evocatively recreates the world she grew up with and in. She brings us not just that marshy land where land meets sea, but even more so, the watermen who risk their lives hauling their livings from the sea, and of course their children and wives, who wait, pray, and hope the sea won't take their men forever. It's a hard life, a dangerous life, but as one character states, "I'm cast iron." The lives portrayed here should never be forgotten. We should indeed speak their names, but even more, read their stories, over and over. Robert Cooperman, Author of In the Colorado Gold Fever Mountains, winner of the Colorado Book Award for Poetry Take a waterglobe that includes the coves of Whidbey Island, and the weather, and weathered people of "The Shipping News", place it gently, with calloused hands, into the area of the Chesapeake Bay, and you have So Long As We Speak Their Names, a glorious collection by Ann Howells. Where names are old-fashioned but work ethic isn't, this is set in the time of our parents and their parents, where each cruel winter brings new widows, and everyone has just a drop of "that damned Twilley blood!" I loved this collection. The watermen and their women-Ann taught me all about them. I want to eat wild asparagus, stain my lips purple with berries, learn how to can for the winter. This is not a book I'll read and put away, I'll keep it close-at-hand forever. And I bet you will too. Tobi Alfier, Co-Editor San Pedro River Review, Blue Horse Press

The poems in this manuscript are persona poems, spoken primarily in the voice of Vincent Van Gogh but a few by others prominent in his life. Italicized passages within the poems are direct quotations from Van Gogh's letters to his brother Theo. In other poems Van Gogh's thoughts and ideas are frequently paraphrased, summarized, or interpreted. The epigrams attributed to VVG are also from Van Gogh's letters. In several places, additional quotations are attributed, by name, to others, including the entire text of Emile Barnard's letter. All of these writings are in public domain.

In The Lame God, author M. B. McLatchey reminds us of the inevitable bond between art and empathy. With a controlled language that finds its echo chamber in the immortal themes and characters of classical literature, this courageous work accompanies the author on her journey through a parent's anguish in the face of a horrific crime. Using the art of poetry she gives voice to a suffering—and a love—that might otherwise go unheard. The May Swenson Poetry Award, an annual competition named for May Swenson, honors her as one of America's most provocative and vital writers. During her long career, Swenson was loved and praised by writers from virtually every school of American poetry. She left a legacy of fifty years of writing when she died in 1989. She is buried in Logan, Utah, her hometown. Japanese manga art has taken the world by storm. Using Hollywood screenplay structure to illustrate a life in three acts, eighteen scenes, each with two poems as mirrors to action, filmmaker/poet Lawrence Bridges sequences through tragicomic plot twists and subplots to create a character-driven, novel-like book of lyric poems. An unnamed protagonist is torn from a lover, torn from himself, in perpetual transition while starting a new family, surrounded by a lively array of colleagues and friends as his career implodes, asserting his autonomy only to become part of life's "conspiracies." Strangers shift around him in a murky world beyond his control, a world with signs of indeterminacy and happenstance: Restaurant patrons smile innocently while thieves quietly rob, a death pact is used to escape a lover, disguised signals from space aliens announce that our enemies are now their allies. How do you tie up loose ends when characters we like are actually the bad guys? Bridges prods us to answer the main question Can a man love as his world spells farewell? A unique, delightful read an invitation to explore something new in what may be a new genre fusing some of the elements of screenplay with poetry. Today is already yesterday to tomorrow, in Flip Days.
