Life doesn't look like it's supposed to for Dani Ruiz, a hopeless romantic. After a painful and sudden break-up with Rick Marin, Dani hides away from reality, retreating to a world of fiction where she prefers book boyfriends over the hassles of a relationship. Almost two years later, Dani's friends are tired of watching her in a holding pattern, so they stage an intervention, forcing her back into the real world of dating. Unexpectedly, Dani meets Liam Lucas, a down-to-earth firefighter. He might be the person to show her she's still worth something. Dani's hesitant to trust her heart with another man, but their instant and electric chemistry is something she can't deny. As Dani starts to believe that she's found her real-life book boyfriend, Rick decides that he'll go to any lengths to get her back. Seeing Rick as a changed man makes Dani question everything. up heart with Liam? Or has Rick transformed into the man she's always wanted? Written from various points of views, The Do Over is a story of second chances and new beginnings.

This book is about psychosocial support for communities, individuals, teams and based on my experiences from coordinating mental health activities in Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh. It has been my deep joy and honor to work alongside with professionals, volunteers and the beneficiaries and train as well as coordinate it for the camps in Cox's Bazar. In the context of Bangladesh I was able to combine my professional expertise and my personal interest in serving the beneficiaries as well as the professionals working with them. I am happy to share my findings with you, dear readers.

"My time is near and I want you to have it before I go. There is something I need you to find, something I've lost..." these were the phantom words twelve year old Molly heard shortly after being struck by lightning in the street of River's Bend. The words were spoken in the voice of Ambrosia Hawks, Molly's great-great-grandmother. When she recovered, Molly discovered she and her grandfather were destined for a future located in faraway mountains, at the mysterious Wildewood Estates. Here the balance of good and evil rests on The Book of Redemption, the book they are sworn to protect from the evil Count Armistad at all costs. Has Ambrosia asked too much of her young descendant? Can Molly locate the lost staff and survive the attempts on her life, or will the quest put her and her grandfather in danger of losing their lives, forfeiting the Book to the evil Count Armistad?"

Before 1970, scientific research in swimming was poor and anecdotal, and the improvements of performance were linked firstly to the swimmer's experience and, secondly, as a result of permanent research for speed. Before and after the Second World War, scientific studies were conducted by pioneers and marked the beginning of research in stroke mechanics and swimming physiology exercise. This book reviews research on the body of knowledge available for the improvement of sports coaching and training practice in swimming, which seems to be relevant, numerous, and diversified enough to help swimming coaches bridge the gap between theory and practice.

Fifty years after Oscar Lewis's famous depiction of five Mexican families caught in a "culture of poverty," Caroline Moser tells a very different story of five neighborhood women and their families strategically accumulating assets to escape poverty in the Ecuadoran city of Guayaquil. In Ordinary Families, Extraordinary Lives, Moser shows how a more sophisticated understanding of the complexities of asset accumulation as well as poverty itself can help counter inaccurate stereotypes about global poverty. It provides invaluable insight into strategies that may help people in developing countries improve their wellbeing. The similar socioeconomic characteristics and economic circumstances of the Guayaquil families in 1978, when Moser began her research, set the stage for a natural experiment. By 2004, these circumstances varied widely. Moser captures the causes and consequences of these developments through economic data, anthropological narrative, and personal photos. She then places this compelling story within the broader context of political, economic, and spatial changes in Guayaquil and Ecuador. Moser describes how households in a Third World urban slum relentlessly and systematically fought to accumulate human, social, and financial capital assets. Her longitudinal account of their odyssey captures long-term trends and changes in perception that are missed in snapshot assessments. Chapters in this holistic story cover diverse issues such as housing and infrastructure, community mobilization and political negotiation, employment, family dynamics, violence, and emigration.
